Aims of the Module

This module aims to:

- Familiarise learners with the concepts and practice of interprofessional collaboration in the continuum of spine care.
- Identify the promotors and barriers to interprofessional collaboration in the continuum of spine care
- Enable learners to design and implement interprofessional collaborative models in in the continuum of spine care

Learning Outcomes

Upon successful completion of this module, learners will be able to:

- Identify the key features of interprofessional collaboration;
- describe the benefits and challenges to the development of models of interprofessional collaboration;
- Understand how interprofessional spine care benefits patients;
- Review different approaches to interprofessional collaboration;
- Analyse best practices and their implementation in inpatient and outpatient settings;
- Design the framework for an interprofessional spine care team;
- Evaluate patient outcomes within an interprofessional environment;
- Identify important factors that promote or hinder interprofessional collaboration
- Demonstrate knowledge of the roles of other health disciplines involved in in the contiumuum of spine care.
- Ability to collaborate with other members of the interprofessional spine care team

Session 1 Overview

- Describe the benefits and challenges to the development of models of interprofessional collaboration;

Session 2 Interprofessional Collaboration

- Examine and discuss how interprofessional spine care benefits patients;
- Review different approaches to interprofessional collaboration;

Session 3 Best Practices

- Analyse best practices and their implementation in inpatient and outpatient settings;

Session 4 Creating an Interprofessional Team

- Design the framework for an interprofessional spine care team;
- Evaluate patient outcomes within an interprofessional environment;
- Identify important factors that promote or hinder interprofessional collaboration

Prelearning Activities

- Identify the key features of interprofessional collaboration.

R. Muller
 Professor - Director
 MGM School of Physiotherapy
 MGMHS, Navi Mumbai

Instructional Methods

Recognising the nature and needs of adult learners, the following instructional methods will be employed in the teaching of this module:

- Pre-learning activities: Preparatory assignments
- Classroom teaching: includes the implementation of transformative learning theory, opportunity for exploring and exposing different points of view, adult learning theory
- Problem solving and critical learning activities: Assignments to work on before the face to face learning sessions
- Workshops: Dialogue groups where issues can be safely explored in a small group setting

All instructional methods require active participation, consistent with the range of motivations for pursuing the EDISC programme. There should also be a strong emphasis on self-directed learning and pre-reading.

Educational Activities

- Pre-learning activities: Preparatory reading.
 - Learners will be asked to build foundational knowledge for the module with 4 hours of pre-module learning. This will include:
 - familiarisation with the most common models of interprofessional collaboration; reading relevant material on topic
 - understanding of the core elements of collaborative practice in healthcare; watching pre-assigned video
- Classroom teaching
 - Each of the subjects mentioned above will have a short plenary introduction as a lecture given by one of the faculty members. The introduction will provide an overview of the theme based on the literature.
- Workshops: Facilitated group discussions and practical workshop
 - Following each introduction the learners will be divided into workshop groups to discuss the translation of the theoretical learning into practice. Role-plays and physical examination on each other may be performed. Participants will not be required to undress for this exercise.

Assessment

For the completion of the module, participants will be required to submit a reflective essay. Requirements and structure will be given at the end of the module.

R. Muller

Professor - Director
MGM School of Physiotherapy
MGMIHS, Navi Mumbai

Course Evaluation by the Participants

In line with EACCME's requirements for accredited activities, participants will be requested to complete a mandatory course evaluation at the end of the module in the form of a short online survey. Responding to the survey is a condition in order for participants to obtain their CME certificates
