8.	29/5/2020	Nutrition during heart disease, food intolerance	Advance nutrition	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Chronic phase: Efforts must be taken to increase LES pressure. meals/foods high in protein increase sphincter pressure and reduce the likelihood of reflux and heartburn Avoiding foods that are known to cause heartburn and decrease LES pressure like chocolate, alcohol, caffeine containing beverages, coffee, cold drink fatty foods and increased fat intake. Timing of the meals is very important especially before the afternoon nap and evening. The patients should consume nothing except water 3 hours before lying down. This in turn ensures an almost empty stomach with less likelihood of reflux on lying down. Avoid lying down, bending or straining immediately after eating. Reduce weight so that the abdominal pressure is decreased. Avoid tight fitting clothes Avoid smoking as nicotine decreases LES pressure.
